Journal of Lower Genital Tract Disease Appoints Editor-in-Chief

Rockville, Maryland, October 26, 2021 – ASCCP, improving lives through the prevention and treatment of anogenital and HPV-related diseases, has appointed Jacob Bornstein, MD, MPA as Editor-in Chief of the Journal of Lower Genital Tract Disease. Bornstein is a Professor at the Bar-Ilan University in Israel, where he also served as the Associate Dean for academic promotion, as well as the immediate past Chairman in the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology for the Galilee Medical Center. Bornstein completed his medical degree with the Hadassah and Hebrew University Medical School in Jerusalem Israel, and later completed a fellowship through the Baylor College of Medicine in Houston, Texas. He later went on to earn his Masters of Public Administration from Clark University in Boston, Massachusetts.

Dr. Bornstein comes to the Journal of Lower Genital Tract Disease with significant editorial experience, most recently serving as the Editor-in-Chief for Pelvipiperineology. Additionally, he brings a wealth of lower genital tract leadership experience to the role, having been an active member of ASCCP for over 20 years, as well as being heavily involved with the International Federation of Cervical Pathology and Colposcopy (IFCPC) and the International Society for the Study of Vulvovaginal Disease (ISSVD), where he served as the President. He headed the terminology committees of both the IFCPC and ISSVD, producing the IFCPC colposcopy terminology, the consensus terminology of vulvar pain and vulvodinia, and the VIN terminology.

About ASCCP

ASCCP, improving lives through the prevention and treatment of anogenital and HPV-related diseases, is a professional society for an interdisciplinary group of healthcare professionals including physicians, physician assistants, nurse practitioners, midwives and researchers, who are focused on the areas of the anogenital tract and HPV-related diseases. Each year the Society hosts a variety of educational events.
